NZMS 596 Broadsheet Collective

1. Introduction

Founded in 1970, Auckland Women’s Liberation was one of New Zealand’s second-wave feminist groups. AWL distributed its first newsletter (broadsheet) in February 1971. Within a few months AWL members Sandra Coney, Anne Else, Rosemary Ronald, and Kitty Wishart formed the Broadsheet Collective and produced Broadsheet - New Zealand's first feminist magazine focusing on women’s issues and information sharing on a national and international level. Broadsheet Collective maintained its affiliation to Auckland Women’s Liberation until the late 1970s.

Released in July 1972, Broadsheet Issue No 1 consisted of twelve foolscap pages - stapled; the 200 copies sold quickly and before the release of Issue No 2, Broadsheet had fifty paid-up subscriptions. Within two years a growing membership and increased sales resulted in a changed of format and Broadsheet, with its new glossy cover, was distributed nationally.

Initially, the Broadsheet Collective editorial team consisted of twelve women representing heterosexual and lesbian interests, with each member working voluntarily. However, conflict arose and in July 1975, a closed collective of six women took on the responsibility of producing the magazine. These were Sharyn Cederman, Val Cole, Sandra Coney, Lorraine McArthur, Rosemary Ronald and Julie Thompson. The level of subscriptions increased, and in March 1976 Broadsheet was able to employ two part-time workers (Sandra Coney and Rosemary Ronald).

The Collective continued to work by consensus, maintaining an independent feminist viewpoint with all issues debated at length. In 1978, feminists associated with W.A.C. (Auckland Woman’s Art Collective) challenged Auckland Women’s Liberation’s philosophy, resulting in the resignation of four (of the 8) members of the Broadsheet Collective. It was a time of redefinition and rebuilding.
The Broadsheet Book Shop opened in 1981 in a spare room in the Broadsheet offices. By 1985, Broadsheet had moved to Karangahape Road where the shop was at street level. Two years later the office and shop moved to Dominion Road. With falling book sales, the shop was sold in 1989 to Carole Beu and the name changed to The Women's Bookshop.

Between 1972 and 1982, the Broadsheet Collective massed a substantial research resource relating to women’s issues and much time was spent in servicing outside enquiries. The resource was developed and maintained by P.E.P. staff working under the guidance of Claire-Louise McCurdy. However, government funding changed and in 1986 Womanfile Research and Information Centre Inc. was created, enabling the society to employ a V.O.T.P. worker to maintain resources and services.

While Broadsheet spoke for New Zealand’s feminists, the magazine was never financially viable. With insufficient advertising revenue and subscriptions, the magazine was supported by profits from the bookshop, appeals and other fundraising ventures. In 1987, an attempt was made to lift the publication’s profile and subscription level. In 1988, Broadsheet became a limited liability company with a new management structure, two full-time positions (advertising and promotions). The years following the 1989 share market crash saw falling advertising and subscriptions; despite the revamp, Broadsheet continued loosing ground. Broadsheet Magazine Limited was wound up in 1990 and Womanfile Research and Information Centre Inc. took over production.

By 1991, the Collective reverted to voluntary labour and continued producing quarterly magazines for a further six years. After a quarter of a century’s service to New Zealand feminists Broadsheet closed with the issue No 214 July 1997. At the time of closing, Broadsheet was New Zealand’s only feminist magazine and claimed to be the longest running magazine of second-wave feminism in the world.

2. Scope and contents

Date range 1971 – 1999.

The collection consists of an incomplete run of administrative records including minutes of meetings 1989 – 1999, financial records, correspondence and an almost complete run of Broadsheet magazine. [Copies of the missing issues are available in bound volumes in the Auckland Research Centre, Auckland central library (Ref: A+ serial 396 B86)]

Dissemination of information was an important function. Broadsheet developed a research resource titled Womanfile. Arranged by subject, files contain extracts from publications, correspondence, published and unpublished material, newspaper clippings and sundry papers. At various times, inward correspondence such as letters to the Editor was filed according to subject.

The records also contains a significant collection of solicited and unsolicited periodicals received by Broadsheet including newsletters, journals, magazines, serials, bulletins and other periodicals from New Zealand and international organisations, collectives and publishing houses. The periodicals reflect Broadsheets diverse interests and include feminism (heterosexual and lesbian), women’s health, environmental issues, anti-nuclear protest, Christian perspectives, coven groups, the arts (film, art gallery etc NZ). Additional periodicals are filed amongst the Womanfile research papers. Also included is a small collection of posters, publications and a quantity of unsorted papers.

3. Conditions of access

OPEN (with the exception of files restricted under the Privacy Act 1994)

4. Processing notes
The Broadsheet collection was accessioned in two stages: the first part was gifted in 1989 and a second part gifted in 2001. For identification purposes in these notes the two collections will be described as the 1989 collection and the 2001 collection. The term ‘combined collections’ means an amalgamation of the 1989 and 2001 collections.

Acquisition 1:
The transfer occurred in 1989; Claire Louise McCurdy and Pat Rosier represented Broadsheet and Manuscript Librarians Jane Wild and Theresa Graham, the Auckland City Libraries. The 1989 collection predominantly consisted of the files and papers associated with Womanfile Research and Information Centre Inc. Stored in a variety of boxes and folders; there were no finding aids of guides to the collection. Mary Donald processed the 1989 collection in 2009. Resources were removed from their original cardboard cartons and papers removed from Eastlight ring binders were secured with cotton tape before being re-housed into acid-free folders. Original order is evident within each file. Titles and subject headings are original. Folders containing items affected by the Privacy Act 1994 are clearly marked on the file cover and have been physically removed from the sequence (now located in Box 0). Unless stated otherwise, all inward correspondence sent to a Broadsheet editor is deemed information that the sender intended for publication. These papers remain within their original position in the sequence and it is possible that further sensitive papers are yet to be identified.

Acquisition 2:
In 1999, Claire Louise McCurdy and Linda Hill secured a NZ Lottery Grant for the appraisal, arrangement and description of the remaining Broadsheet archive. After attending a workshop facilitated by archivist Ellen Ellis, work began on the collection in early 2000. The collection, housed in acid-free folders complete with inventory, was presented to Special Collections, Auckland City Library on June 13 2001.

The 2001 collection consisted of files from the office at closure including an incomplete run of minutes, correspondence, incomplete financial records and sundry administration files, and some research papers in a similar vein to the Womanfile Research and Information Centre Inc Resources. The 2001 collection appears to have been appraised, as many files are devoid of the clippings and sundry papers found in the 1989 collection.

A note in the process papers records that photographs remained with Claire-Louise McCurdy for identification before being transferred to the Library. These have not been transferred. A phone conversation with Claire-Louise McCurdy on Wed 30th September 2009 confirmed that she has the photos and is currently working on describing each individual image.

Unification of the two collections:
In 2009 Mary Donald created a draft inventory of the 1989 collection, expanded the inventory of the 2001 collection before melding the two collections into series. The integrity of the two collections is evident in the processing lists.

Series 1 – Administration.

It appears there was one general filing system containing papers relating to the Collective, Womanfile Research and Information Centre Inc, Broadsheet Co Ltd etc. Consequently, all administration papers from both collections are in one series with a generic title.

Series 2 – Broadsheet Magazine.

Consist of an incomplete run of Broadsheet magazines – all of which are from the 2001 collection.

Series 3 - Womanfile Research and Information Centre Inc.

The title has been applied by Mary Donald during the 2009 arrangement and description. It brings together the series of subject files developed by the Broadsheet Collective under the PEP scheme and later the society (Womanfile Research and Information Centre Inc). It also contains the resources.
gathered by Pat Rosier in the 1990s. Series 3 combines the two collections. As a rule, the items in the grey folders are from the 1989 collection and the white folders from the 2001 collection.

Series 4 – Periodicals/Publications.

Includes national and international periodicals acquired by Broadsheet. These are part of the first 1989 collection. Further periodicals are interfiled within the Womanfile resources.

Series 5 – Posters / Outsized / Artworks.

Consists of posters that are mainly from the 2001 collection this was arranged and described by Claire-Louise McCurdy and Linda Hill. Mary Donald removed a small number of posters from their original files. The original location is noted on the reverse side. In addition to posters, this series also holds a number of large format photographs used for Broadsheet front covers and sundry artwork.

Series 6 – Sundry papers yet to be described.

This is a collection of sundry papers lacking title/subject headings or any indication of where they fit in the collection. Given time restraints, this part of the collection remains un-described.

Series 3 : Womanfile Research and Information Centre

Between 1972 and 1982 the Broadsheet Collective massed a substantial research resource relating to women’s issues and much time was spent in servicing outside enquiries. The resource was maintained and developed by P.E.P. staff working under the guidance of Claire-Louise McCurdy. However, government funding changed and in 1986 Womanfile Research and Information Centre Inc was created, enabling the society to employ a VOTP worker to maintain resources and services.

There are five sub-series as follows:

3A Research files 1 (originally in East Light binders)
A series of research files 1975 – 1985 on feminist topics.

The series contains newspaper clippings, extracts from publications, unpublished articles/essays, sundry printed material, ephemera, newspaper clippings, etc.

This series follows a legend with main title and sub titles, a copy of which is included with each folder. Most newspaper clippings have been glued to recycled paper – paper used includes Broadsheet correspondence and a TV script (South Pacific Television’s (TV2) production of Radio Waves by Robert Jesson).

3B Research files 2 (originally in manila file boxes)
A series of research files 1977 – 1988. This series do not appear to be part of the above files as there are no title sheets or subheadings lists. However, this does not appear to contain duplicate information.

3C Research files 3 (originally in paper bags and envelopes)
It is assumed that this series contains papers waiting to be filed in either one of earlier described Research series.

3D Research files 4
This series was originally housed in a variety of styles of ring binders and are not part of Research files 1.

3E Research files 5
Originally arranged and described by…. this series appears to have been appraised. While Womanfile subjects have been applied, the headings do not fully conform to the standards set in the original files.
3A Research files 1

A series of research files 1975 – 1985 on feminist topics. Originally housed in ring binders (Eastlight arch lever and Olympus ring binders). Papers removed from binders are threaded with cotton tape. The original file titles and order within each file have been retained. Most newspaper clippings have been glued to recycled paper – including correspondence and a TV script (South Pacific Television’s (TV2) production of Radio Waves by Robert Jesson).

Titles of papers or publications within files are italicised.

The main title: the original folder title
The subject headings: original subject heading/s describing the scope of each folder
The content descriptions: indicates the type of material, date range and highlights unpublished works, conference papers, submissions etc.
